The Murray-Rostell Co.
Norway Opera House will have an attraction for four days commencing Sept. 12, the Murray-Rostell Co., a repertoire organization headed by that funny comedian, Peter Murray, who is well known to the theatre-going public of Norway and New England. Mr. Murray made many friends here during his previous engagements. He is a splendid comedian endowed with a pleasing voice and a winning personality.
His supporting company is said to be the best this season that has ever had.
Good comedy plays presented with careful attention paid to completeness of production is what the company guarantees. The vaudeville features introduced between each act are far above the average seen with a popular priced company and each act is novel and refined.
There are plenty of specialties and a continuous performance each evening is assured. Popular prices of 25, 35 and 50c will prevail during the opening night is "A Battle for Life," one of the sea-seen in one of his strongest comedy roles.

Moore-Goodwin.
Frank A. Moore and Eva Grace Goodwin, both of Norway, were quietly married last Sunday morning in the High St.
Methodist Episcopal parsonage, Auburn.

Miss Goodwin is a daughter of Daniel W. Goodwin of Norway, and is well known as a young lady of estimable qualities. Mr. Moore is a son of Samuel F. Moore of Gilead, and is one of Gilead's emerging young citizens. The young couple have a host of friends.

They were married by Rev. Fred A.
Leitch at 9 o'clock, the ring service being used. Miss Goodwin wore a traveling suit of blue.

The bride was a graduate of the Norway High school, class '09, and was the class Historian. She worked in Mrs. E.
L. Powers' millinery store, three seasons.
She afterward worked in the shoe shop here and at Auburn. Mr. Moore has served in the churches, mostly at the Universalist.

They left on the 10.40 train for Lowell Mass., where they will visit Mrs. Moore's sister, Mrs. Donnie Russell.

Lake News.
The summer people are moving away rapidly and the lake shore is beginning to have a deserted appearance.

E. S. Paret and party returned Sunday afternoon, to Philadelphia.
H. L. Barnham also went to Philadelphia, Monday.

Frank Callahan and friends, Mr. Hart and Dr. McIntyre from Lynn, were at Columbia several days the past week.
S. K. Billings returned to Newtonville, Wednesday.

Harry Downing pulled the steam launch, Zanita, out of the water, Monday. Geo. Wood did the work. The motor launch, Sunbeam, will run a few weeks longer.

Mrs. F. J. Moffatt and children, Margery and Kenmore, close their cottage and return to Dorchester, Friday forenoon. Ethel Lapham accompanies them. She will attend the Perkins Institute for the Blind, in Boston.

Ferd. Swan and family shut up Pinehurst, after a summer's stay there, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Horne returned to Lewiston, Tuesday.
Col. E. F. Smith has bought the Dr.
Aldrich cottage near Gibson's grove,
Lake Penesseewassee, and re-christened
it "The Alexander."

Judge Arthur Morrison and party spent the week-end at Cedar Lodge.
S. H. Hayden and family returned to Haverhill, Mass., Tuesday. They went in their automobile. The family have been at their cottage by Lake Penesseewassee since the 25th of June, and Mr.
Hayden has been here a few days nearly every week. Business is good with Mr.
Hayden.

Prof. J. E. Schmidlin, physical director of the schools of Elizabeth, N. J., wife and son Carl are stopping for two weeks at Ridlon's cottage by the lake.
They arrived last Tuesday.

Work on the Block.
Wednesday morning the Odd Fellows block was the scene of great activity.
Six or eight masons arrived from Portland, Wednesday, and work will begin in earnest. J. O'Rourke of Portland, is the boss mason. Wednesday morning his helpers were Barton McDonough and Thomas Duffy of Portland, and Joe Jock of Norway.

The brick came from Danville Junction, and the granite from the Auburn Co. Herbert L. Henderson Co. of Boston, is furnishing the structural steel.
The old roof will be left on the building and the walls built up around it.
At present there are stagings on all the sides except next to the Open House.
Lumber, bricks and building material are piled around, but in no way interferes with Thos. Smiley's Dry Goods Store, except the bother. One thing which causes interest is a small shanty on top of the block.

Josephine Mains has got through doing table work for the Mountain View Realty Co. and is visiting her mother, E.
Bolester, Mills and her friend, Viola
Brown, at Wm. C. Leavitt's. Next week
she goes to Bliss college, Lewiston.

The boating season is nearly over for this year. Gasoline boats are numerous and that there has been no accident by leaking gas, fire and explosion is fortunate. We are told the dangerous combustible has been handled very carelessly, even to smoking on the public boats and the carrying of unconfined gasoline as freight. This should not be permitted and if its practice is continued it should be cause for passenger revoking a license to carry passengers.

Gladys Frost entertained a party of friends at her home on Paris street, Saturday evening, in celebration of her eighteenth birthday. Games were enjoyed during the evening. Refreshments of ice cream and fancy cake were served by the hostess. The party left at a late hour after spending a delightful evening and wishing the hostess many happy returns of the day.

The Forty Hour devotion which opened Sunday morning at 10.30 at St. Cath-erine's church, closed Tuesday morning.
The services were conducted by Rev. J.
D. Quinn of Yarmouthville, who delivered three very impressive sermons on the Holy Eucharist. The Catholics of Norway may well feel proud of having so

At the Fair-Grounds.

R. L. Cummings of West Paris, is camping in a tent with his two boys, Harold and Alanson. He is taking his vacation and getting some of his horses ready to exhibit at the fair.

The Stuart Brothers of South Paris, have been painting the fence about the track, the Judges' stand, the new grandstand, and the new office beside the new grandstand.

Jarvis Doble, Fred Abbott, T. E.
Wayne, Chas. Damon, Geo. Witherrill and Win Starbird, are repairing and cleaning up the grounds. They are using W. J. Wheeler's teams.

Geo. Emerson of South Paris, besides the new grandstand, has built a new cattle shed and has been repairing the pens and about the hall.

An addition of 100 feet has been put on the pulling track. This makes the track over 200 feet long. The best track of its kind in the state.

Pres. Wheeler informs us that the race track, the grounds and the buildings, have never been in better condition.

There are more applications for space there before the hall is all let for granges, art, fancy exhibits, vegetables, etc. Four granges will exhibit, the Norway, South Paris, Crooked River and West Paris.

The baby show promises to be particularly interesting as there is the largest number of entries since this feature was established.

Barring rainy weather, Pres. Wheeler says the Fair of 1910 promises to be the greatest and most successful in the history of the Oxford County Agricultural Society.

Cousin Party.
Friday, September 20, a cousin party was held at the Leavitt cottage by Lake Penesseewassee.

After a generous picnic dinner, which was served on the piazza, Mrs. Mary Hobart read Whittier's poem, "How the Women Went from Dover," in praise of Mrs. Robert Pike, a leading ancestor of those present. Mrs. Susan Kelley sang
"When You and I were Young, Maggie," in a sweet, clear voice for one 78 years of age.

charming day.

After the banquet letters were read from several members who were unable to be present, school reminiscences were indulged in, school compositions were read, and after a few minutes of rest, to the great amusement of those present.

Everybody joined in singing the old turned from a trip through the western large pair of wooden shoes which the compare favorably with the modern shoe. Mr. Frost got them while he was

Don't Experiment.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Norway Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Norway. Follow the advice of a Norway citizen and be cured yourself.

Mrs. Solon Moore, Tucker St., Norway, Me., says: "About five years ago I was troubled with kidney complaint, accompanied by attacks of rheumatism. My whole body seemed to be affected and during these spells the secretions from my kidneys were very unnatural. I used many remedies, but I received no benefit. I at last procured Doan's Kidney Pills from Stone's drug store and they proved to be an excellent remedy. I am pleased to give this preparation my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

For Everyday Girls.

The Woman who takes as her life motto, "Do it at once," is the woman who is not hounded by an accusing conscience. The modern girl, however, for whom the motto is chiefly for things we have not done.

The only time one is sure of is the present; putting off to some more convenient moment is to lay up a reputation for laziness or slovenliness.

The woman who believes that to apologize is to accuse will rarely have to back water on her belief if she gets into the do-it-at-once habit.

Do it at once is not another name for the "little drops of water" precept of childhood. The "mighty ocean" of accumulated duties will never swamp you if each wave is breasted as it comes.

Doing it at once is like oiling a dusty plume. It smooths the path of life and smoothes complaint and criticism.

Most of the fret and nerve tacking comes from postponing the things that might just as well be cleared off at once. One is worried until they are done, and more worried if they are not done.

The girl who sews the first rip never has to take up a needle again.

The girl who answers her invitations the minute she gets them never will be mortified by being called up over the telephone to know if she is coming.

The woman who sends her checks as soon as she gets her bills, who returns her obligation calls within the week, who gets off her gifts to a bride the day the cards come, who answers her letters immediately, never has to work the excuse of forgetfulness overtime.

The Boy.

Why is it that in every neighborhood there is always one youthful specimen of the genus homo who seems to be entitled to the special distinction of being called "The Boy"? He may not be indeed the very best specimen of the biggest of the boys in his special locality, nor is he always the leader among his comrades. But he is the one youth, who, apparently, for some occult reason, is able to carry out the obligations and responsibilities that pertain to his particular period of existence.

Such a boy permeates my present environment. His voice is the one that pierces my eyelids when in the early morning as he personally conducts the milking man to add from the front kitchen porch where my maternal bottle of milk has been regularly left for nearly two years now. And his voice rings in my ears as I close my front doors at night, and following the example of the self-sufficient and meditative clam, who lives his life, free life untrammelled and undisturbed in the deep mud, shut away the outside world and retire into my own personal silence.

Does a fish, vegetable, fruit or ice-cream peddler appear in the horizon any time outside of school hours, this boy also appears, revolving about him like a satellite, and paying strict and keen attention to every business transaction that takes place between him and the good people hereabout. He is stridently and mockingly assists the "rag, bottle, sack" men to irritate our nerves and disturb our peace of mind; and he levies tribute on the ice-man in regular ice-cream fashion. He is the self-appointed improver of every wandering figure who drifts into the town, and he even has been known to solicit contributions for them, when they have no monkey to perform that part of their work.

Do we go in bathing, the Boy either at a little distance accompanies us into the riotous embrace of the waves, or—having become waterlogged by reason of a previous protracted stay in the heaving water—sits on an adjacent rock, or piece of drift-wood and keeps up a running fire of questions as to our sensations, or comments upon our manner of disposing ourselves, or tells us tales concerning his own or some one else's adventure or prowess when "in swimmin'."

This he keeps up as long as our natural modesty will allow us to endure the fierce light of publicity into which we are necessarily dragged by his loud-voiced companionship, which attracts the attention to every passer-by, be he a foot or a horseback rider, and his efforts to rival the charming Amate Kellerman. When we emerge at last—lank and unlovely—he follows in the wet trail made by our sinking forms and fires off a few closing remarks after us as we gain the comforting seclusion of our enclosed porch—all this with the greatest good nature and comradery imaginable, and with no least idea that, in our estimation, his room, for the time being, would seem greatly preferable to his company.

Should guests be added unto us, the Boy hovers about, as we sit on our porch—or if we take them for the regulation walk, accompanies the expedition either as advance or rear guard, and generally enters into the conversation as if he were a member of the party, and is full of information that may be desired regarding this locality and its residents.

Does he see signs of "going boatin'" on the part of any of his numerous acquaintances he hustles up to the scene of operations and makes himself officiously and obtrusively useful, in the hope of being taken along as a sort of guide. Not that boasting itself is any great treat to him, for he is semi-aquatic by nature and education, and understands boats as many boys do—stands by the shore and looks at the wags and wags—but he dearly loves to "accompany expeditions" and let his voice soar high in explaining matters in general to his fellow creatures.

The Boy is always on the lookout for "jobs" but he is not very thorough in the performance of them—indeed, he is apt to sub-let them for he is quite too full of business to have much time for work of a commonplace and uninteresting nature. He will "run errands" provided there is nothing "engrossing" going on at that time; and as a source of labor he utterly detests backyards and the interiors of barns or woodsheds.

He likes to be out in the populous open, where he can hear and see what is going on, and where he may be at hand to take command, or even bring up the rear, of any semblance of a procession. He wants to see all the dog fights, and chase all the cats, and "saw" all the grocery cart drivers, and get in to the dust, and smell the smell of every passing automobile; he is also as active and palpitating part of all the active and palpitating life within reach of him—and he does it.

And by and by—mark my words—this Boy will grow up from bumptious boyhood into being a real man of affairs. His habits of observation, and of arranging and expressing his ideas, his self-confidence which he has acquired by persistently "butting in" where he is not in the least needed or wanted—all these will stand him in good stead as he grows older, and will make of him just the kind of a grown-up who stands the best chance of "getting on" in this world of ours which gives so little to anybody, but which always and forever lets everybody have a chance in its grab bag.

Poultry Interests.

The problem of securing a cheap and satisfactory green food for poultry in the winter months is an important one for all practical poultrymen. The Experiment Station has been, for some time past, using green sprouts, such as a source of winter green food with highly satisfactory results. In bulletin No. 179 is described the method by which the oats are sprouted and grown at the Station plant.

A short section in the bulletin deals with the subject of keeping poultry free from lice, describing the lice powder and the lice paint which is used at the Station. Another section gives an account of the method of making the cresol disinfectant solution used for keeping poultry houses, fixtures, incubators, brooders, etc., free of vermin and for general disinfecting purposes.

Copies of Bulletin 179, Poultry Notes, may be obtained on application to Director Chas. D. Woods, Maine Experiment Station, Orono, Maine.

Reminiscences of 40 Years Ago.

Maine the Paradise State of New England.

"Milton's paradise lost"—a fiction, may have a grain of truth in the application when one contemplates the demolition and a most utter extinction of her grand old forests and the havoc made by the ax among her lakes, ponds and streams once teeming with that daintiest of all fish the sparkling, speckled trout.

Forty years ago the writer and brother stopped over night at the hospitable home of Mr. Knight close by "Great Concord" pond in quest of her sister "Little Concord" after a struggle for hours over huge rocks, through jungles and almost impenetrable thickets of wood and fallen trees the pond was reached. Never in all my life have I gazed upon a more fairy lake or scene, a lovely gem of water, placid, sparkling, laughing or so it seems to me, while grand "Old Speckle" mountain seemed to look down with a frown upon her child "Little Concord" nestling at her feet.

Soon with that expectancy known only to anglers the moment arrived when a throw of the line in the deep green water, strange the water is of that color, met disappointment, not a ripple or nibble, the thought came, has all this toil and hardship been in vain! "Old Speckle" seemed to laugh, just then an army-school, packed like sardines, of silver shining trout came slowly by, steadily they advanced to our lines and soon we were busy, very busy, until they disappeared moving along in seeming order, only later to give way for advancing columns from behind; this was repeated at intervals until our baskets were filled with trout from six to eight inches long. This was "Little Concord" in the Sixties and Seventies.

About this time as the story was told the writer which was verified later this beautiful little pond was doomed. It seems some anglers from B. and adjoining town made an invasion on old Mr. Barnes' thorn's corral—it was said he swore "he'd put pickeral in the pond and spoil their sport," be that as it may the pond three years later was stocked with small pickeral while the trout slowly disappeared, only occasionally a linguist might be caught whose weight would be three to four pounds.

"Abbots Pond" twin sister close by of like character right under "Old Speckle" once famous as a trout pond has sadly been depleted. Its former glory gone.

Dear, grand, majestic "Old Speckle" how I loved to gaze on its rocky sides; its overhanging cliffs and peak towering away up into yonder blue. I have ascended its side, crossed its top and have looked out on the panoramic scene before me. Fifty miles away can be seen the great lakes, immense forests, ponds and streams, dotted here and there the White mountains and surrounding hills with towns nestling among them altogether forming a scene of surpassing splendor.

The writer has crossed the Alps of Switzerland, the Rome glacier, the Appennines, with its lofty peaks but was never impressed with their grandeur or sublimity as with the view from the top of "Old Speckle."

I remember the little cottage or home under O. d. Speckle of Mr. Bowker and his good wife, so kind and cheerful in her home duties, and too the sweet memories of those dear friends of "Jack" son Village, the Howes, Jacob and Polly, good souls, Purifiers and Rysons, Sisbys, Abbotts, Healds, Stetsons, Mr. Chaddler, the postmaster, Israel Fletcher and his good wife and many others. Many of whom have passed to the "great beyond" whose names are hallowed by the recollection of loving acts and deeds.

Should the ADVERTISER wish me to, I will relate how "Uncle Jerry" caught me early one fine morning pulling a three pound pickeral from Pleasant Pond, of course I was surprised to learn from him the "law was on" as he said. (The ADVERTISER and the ADVERTISER readers will be most pleased to read of Uncle Jerry.) Sincerely, H. W. SMITH. Smiths Mass., "The Spruces."

How Father Won.

A Victim of Education and His Faulty Logic.

"I didn't ask to be here. I have no responsibility in the matter."

William Cableton, a boy of 12 years, gazed at his father calmly and dispassionately. There wasn't the slightest trace of feeling in his voice. He spoke, however, as one with authority.

"What do you mean?" gasped his father, who, having asked his son to go on an errand for him, had been met with a stern refusal and the explanation that he didn't have time.

"I mean, sir," replied William respectfully, "that you have really no claim on me to wait upon you. You did not consult me when I was born. The law of the state requires that you shall take care of me and see that I am equipped with a good education and a sound body. I cannot acquire these advantages if I am to be constantly interrupted by frequent such as you have just preferred. I am sorry, of course, but my duty is plain."

Mr. Cableton reflected for a moment. Then he got up and closed the door.

"I realize the logic of your position, my boy," he replied smiling. "I presume you have learned this at school, have you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"What are your studies?"

"I have been through civics, which teaches the relationship of the individual to the state; then I am studying psychology which enables me to grasp the principles of the mind. Then we have physiology, which teaches us how to care for our bodies, and exercises—how to train them."

"Exactly."

Mr. Cableton smiled harmoniously. "Then your scheme of education," he ventured, "does not consider the parent?"

"Oh, yes, sir, it considers the functions of the parent, which are of course very important. I could scarcely get along without you, for example. This involves me in no obligation, however, as I have pointed out. You are compelled to provide for me."

Mr. Cableton smiled again.

"Then we are really equals in the law," he said. "There is no obligation on either side. It is purely a matter of natural functions."

"Yes, sir."

"You doubtless believe in evolution?"

"In its essential form, yes, sir."

"That is sufficient. And you have heard"—here Mr. Cableton got up once more and looked the door—"of the theory of the survival of the fittest?"

William began to shift one foot to the other. He glanced at the closed window.

"It has never been proved," he stammered.

"Precisely. But"—his father grabbed him sternly by the collar; he threw him across his knee; he performed certain necessary courtesies; and then he raised his paternal hand high in the air, "my son, it is about to be, beyond all reasonable doubt."

One hour later a small boy, painfully carrying a large package toward his paternal residence from the corner grocery store, soliloquized to himself mournfully:

"There are more things in heaven and earth, William, than are dreamed of in a school curriculum!"—Life.

Dr. Stevens Corrects a Misstatement in Last Week's Paper.
"I wish you to make a correction on that Fore street affair. You have printed in the Advertiser, that I laid the sleeper around to drive on to Mr. Cummings' lawn, which is a total lie, as I did not move the sleeper for any such purpose, as there was plenty of room between the grass and mud to drive when the sleeper was out of the way. And in driving by, I did not run over one speaker of grass that was on what he called his lawn, and had the sleeper been laid back to the edge of the grass there would have been no trouble. But by the sleeper lying more than two feet into the main traveled road, it was impossible to pass without running into the mud or over the sleeper. These are the facts and I have proof of them."

Oxford Pomona Grange.
The meeting of Oxford County Pomona was held this month with Oxford Grange. The officers present at the call were Master, R. H. Gates; overseer, H. E. Jilison; lecturer, J. W. Hunting; steward, J. H. Edwards; assistant steward, A. M. Ryerson; chaplain, J. H. Little; secretary, S. E. Jackson; gate keeper, W. A. Bartlett; Pomona, Lottie Gates; Flora, Ella Meeserve; lady assistant, Clara Ryerson.

The following credential committee, A. M. Ryerson, Clara Ryerson, A. T. Stone, reported five names as candidates to receive the degree of Pomona. The names are as follows: George W. Tyner, Mrs. George W. Tyner of Oxford, Har. G. L. Porter of West Paris, Claude E. Greeley of Oufield and C. L. Case of Paris. They were elected to membership and the degree conferred in a very impressive manner.

The dinner committee under the leadership of Mrs. J. W. Hunting, with Mrs. Clara Warren, Mrs. James Russ, Mrs. Clara Bonney, Mrs. Rita Carey, Mrs. John Chadbourne as helpers furnished a fine dinner.

Mr. Hunting acted as lecturer. There was an able paper read by the worthy lecturer, "A Tribute to Lafayette," telling of his birthplace, something of his life's work and the debt to his country from his able generalship. Worthy Chaplain J. H. Little was called on and recited incidents of interest in the life of Lafayette, and said he stood side by side with Washington as one who helped to bring into existence this great republic.

A poem, "Lament to Lafayette," was beautifully read by the worthy secretary, Mrs. S. E. Jackson, and after this a piano solo by Mrs. George W. Tyner was applauded until she consented to play a second time.

C. J. Case, a new member, presented an address, "The Desirability of Haying a Specialty." He cited several cases of what perseverance in any particular line can do, how concentration of purpose brings its sure reward. Then in a humorous vein he spoke of his own experiences as a farmer. Mr. Case is a New York gentleman, who has bought a farm in Oxford county and his experiences in turkey raising are very amusing.

The meeting next month will be held with Lakeside Grange.

Mrs. Ethan Farris of East Oxford has typhoid fever.

Jessie Martin, who has been visiting her father, has returned to Boston.

Mittrele King of Washington, D. C. is visiting at Mrs. Nellie Hawkes'.

The catamount that killed this famous rooster can be seen along with the other 11 cages of living curiosities on the Midway.

There was a game of base ball, Saturday at Shelburne, between Gileads and Shelburnes. Victory for the Gileads.

BRYANT POND.

Mrs. James Day.

Mrs. James Day died at her home on the morning of Sept. 2. She had been a great sufferer for several months until within an hour of her death, when she fell into a sweet sleep from which she never awoke.

When the cold earth clods fell with a dull thud on the casket that held her loved form, so beautiful even in death, it seemed to those who loved her that they could not give her up, for few people were loved as she was, aside from those who leave children to mourn for them.

From her girlhood she has been a great help in this, her home town, in the way of helping with the music in the different churches, and at any occasion where her services in that line were needed. It was she who always trained the children for special occasions. Last Easter she drilled them for Easter services but was taken suddenly ill, and the services were never held. Possessed with a beautiful alto voice, she was always ready to assist in the singing for festivals, funerals, etc., and willing to give her services at the piano or organ, and in this way it will be hard to replace her.

She had no children, yet more than one motherless child has shared her comfortable home and have partaken of the love and kind sympathy which she was always ready to bestow on such a child, and the way she has cared for children, and the interest she has taken in them, leaves an example which would be well for many a mother to follow.

She leaves a husband and a sister, Mrs. H. Estes; a little motherless boy, to whom she was all the mother he ever knew; a brother, Edwin Cole; her life friend, Mrs. M. M. Hathaway; and the two little maids who have so faithfully served her years, as well as a large circle of friends.

Mrs. Etta Day had been critically ill during a part of the summer, but had rallied somewhat, to the encouragement of her family and friends. Thursday afternoon she suffered another attack and the end came when she passed peacefully away at 4 o'clock Friday morning.

She was the daughter of William H. and Albina Berry Cole, and was born in this town 55 years ago.

She was a worthy member of the Eastern Star.

Many beautiful floral tributes were brought and placed upon the casket in her memory, at the funeral, which was held at the Universalist church, Sunday afternoon, attended by the Rev. J. H. Little of the Bethel church.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brookfield, Mo.—"Two years ago I was unable to do any kind of work and only weighed 118 pounds. My trouble dates back to the time that women expect nature to bring on them the Change of Life. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel much better, and I have continued its use. I am very grateful to you for the good health I am now enjoying."—Mrs. SARAH LOUISMONT, 41 S. Livingston Street, Brookfield, Mo.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy so successful for women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female complaint, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

flanks of the blue force were turned and it was compelled to retreat. Instead of taking up a new position and continuing the battle, the blues ran at full speed and continued to run so that the combat was a foot race rather than a tactical battle. The umpires gave the tactical defeat to Maine, but decided that Vermont was the victor.

The part played by Co. D throughout the tour was a prominent one. It was to the front on all occasions and by its promptness and efficiency received much praise. At the suggestion of Capt. Morgan, a new method of extending the skirmish line was tried and found to be quick and effective.

A. Marston acted as battalion quartermaster and filled the position with credit. Among the minor injuries received by the soldiers, Private Verrill on the way to camp with his hand through a car window and sustained a bad cut in the wrist.

Sanitation is one of the most important details in connection with a large camp and Major Edwin M. Fuller, Lt. John G. Toward and Lt. E. E. Goodrich of the Medical Corps, and their assistants, were immediately corrected and the camp at all times met the rigid requirements of the higher sanitation inspection.

When the regiment broke camp and all the baggage had been removed and the ground cleaned by the various companies, a skirish line made up of the first battalion at yard intervals went the whole length of the camp site and removed every scrap of paper or piece of rubbish that had been overlooked in the previous cleaning up. It was a novel method of insuring a clean field and was praised.

While the work was hard and constant throughout the tour, yet Sunday observed by the omission of all drills. In the morning each company was marched to the regimental headquarters and Sunday services were conducted by Chaplain James E. Cochrane.

The regimental band furnished appropriate music and the services were greatly enjoyed. Each company was allowed a liberal number of passes to leave camp and many of the soldiers patronized a popular-priced excursion to the Thousand Islands and enjoyed a day in sailing in that beautiful part of the St. Lawrence.

While the order maintained was generally good, yet there were some who were inclined to overstep the bounds laid down. A summary court martial was established with Capt. Lucian W. Blanchard its presiding officer. During the tour, each company was allowed a liberal number of passes to leave camp and many of the soldiers patronized a popular-priced excursion to the Thousand Islands and enjoyed a day in sailing in that beautiful part of the St. Lawrence.

Each regiment in the regular army has an exchange where the small things needed by the soldier are for sale. These were liberally patronized by the men from the Maine regiment and during the tour, each company was allowed a liberal number of passes to leave camp and many of the soldiers patronized a popular-priced excursion to the Thousand Islands and enjoyed a day in sailing in that beautiful part of the St. Lawrence.

The important event of the camp was the combined maneuver which the 2d Maine took a prominent part. Associated with it were the 5th U. S. Infantry, 9th Mass. Infantry, two squadrons 10th Cavalry, Battery D, 3d Field Artillery, and the Signal and Hospital Corps, the whole being designated the red army and opposed to them was an equal force of blues. The reds marched about eight miles from camp and went into bivouac for the night. Each man carried his blanket, overcoat and half of a shelter tent, beside his regular equipment, and the haversack ration. This ration consisted of 12 ounces of canned bacon, 10 ounces of hard-bread packed in a sealed paper box and a waterproof receptacle containing coffee, sugar, salt and pepper, the whole being sufficient for one man for one day. After the shelter tents were pitched, fires were lighted and each soldier, both officers and men, prepared his own meal.

The next day the advance guard was given to Colonel Hume's command. Contact with the enemy was soon attained and the brunt of the ensuing battle was borne by the 2d Maine. The first battalion, under Major Geo. McL. Presson, occupied a strongly entrenched position and was ordered to hold it. His flanks were protected by the second battalion commanded by Major Walter J. Mayo and by the third battalion under Major William E. Southard. The enemy could only dislodge them by bringing up superior forces and in doing so brought themselves in such a position that the remnants of the red forces enveloped both flanks of the blue army and won what the umpires pronounced would have been a decided victory.

In the last maneuver of the camp the 2d Maine as reds was commanded by Col. Frank B. Cummings and was pitted against the 1st Vermont as blues. The battle was vigorously waged, but both

In Municipal court Saturday morning, Mrs. James Callendo was arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill and was bound over under $100 bonds, while her husband was bound over under $500 bonds until such time as their victim will be able to appear in court.

This is the outcome of an affair Friday evening, when at about 6 o'clock Mrs. Callendo, went to Virginia to the home of "Big Frank" the Italian fruit vendor, where after an altercation whose cause is said to be an insult offered to Mrs. Callendo by "Big Frank," Mrs. Callendo drew a razor and slashed the wife of "Big Frank."

The slash is a long one extending from under the ear across the cheek and under the nose, and while severe is not considered particularly dangerous although the woman was not able to appear in court. Bonds were furnished.

The Tale of a Vacation.

Dedicated to Miss "Beniah Seacrow."

To know her was to love her. There was a young lady of uncertain age. Who took a vacation because "tires" "like" tags. And went away up in the high hills of Maine, A few pounds of flesh and a tanned skin, to gain.

For you see, "mongst her friends was one, a "schoolmarm" who did a real live spintster, too. Who up in the same hills of Maine owned a farm, and who said, with superior schoolmarmy smile, "Come up here, and rusticate, dearie, a while!" So the maid packed her suit case for the fall "vac" and they say "The maid sat on it to make the lock stay" And bundled and starched and dressed "up to the nines."

She started out for those old Norway pine. Imagine, my friends, her estate delight When an old-fashioned farm house at last met her sight. And inside, now really this statement is true, She found, yes she did, a real live spintster, too! (Now a spintster was something she thought rather queer.) For she was a young thing herself, the poor dear.

The schoolmarm was "long in the forties,"—but then A schoolmarm's not like other mortals, you know. Now "that girl" from Concord she thought, "these two weeks of idleness, that she had dropped in on a household of 'treasures'."

For the queer things they did would make anyone laugh. On this farm by the two of them owned, half in half. The spintster, whose name was Miss Mary Ann Shedd.

And neither entreaty, command, threat or grumble, Would budge her an inch, if she heard the least rumble. One might get one's breakfast or dinner or tea. If it thundered, Miss Shedd would "lay low,"—yes s'ee! And then that dear schoolmarm, now what do you guess Was the way she for afternoon, every day dressed? She put right shoe on left foot, and left shoe on right. Every morning, then changed them, for afternoon sight. And then felt as dressed, for receiving chance callers. As though rigged in a gown costing hundreds of dollars. Then, if ever occurred some domestic mishap Or from living in style there was any slight lapse, The schoolmarm and spintster would say "o'er and o'er."

"Why we never did anything like this before!" And the guest would keep still and knowingly think. And like Abner, she too, "smoking chesnuts," would think. Now this girl was a reader of world-wide renown. And she had, (hold your breath now) a real "valley gown."

Year in and year out through fair or foul "The maid and the gown" clung fondly together. Why that gown, would have said, if it spoke it were but, "Where thou goest, O maiden I go!"—and it did.

It followed her down to the chapel one night. When the schoolmarm and she did to neighbor's route. And earlier it clung to her fair wavy-like form. When she and the schoolmarm braved the wild storm. For the "artists" through mud and through rain heavily strode. And waited to the hall, while the audience—told.

Ah, that was a night forgotten by none, Those kerosene lamps, how brightly they gleamed. And the seats were so dustless, the floor so clean, And the recess well scrubbed which the organ did screen.

And when they trailed out on the platform to speak. Who'd have thought them same gals cleaned it all up, that week. The schoolmarm was dazzling in spangles and silk. And sported a train that was once white as milk. And the other girl, though she was "homely" at first, Like a sunflower, at last, on the audience smiled.

While Aunt Mary, I never could tell if I tried, How fine she looked, dressed up, they said, "like a bride."

Adults is cents, children 10, say "by gum!" You got what you paid for, and more too, I am! That swell (?) maid from Concord will never forget The cream she depoured and the "victuals" on how on a couch in the night she did "bunk" Disdaining the bed, she thought "harder than sunset."

She'll remember the eye, with tones sweet as a "quess."

The schoolmarm and she sang hymns to Aunt Mary. And how in the pasture at ease (?) she did lie, While horses and ants for her person did vie. How the schoolmarm, reeled off yards of "Monsieur Beauchamp."

Till the Concord maid wondered if she was "all there."

How that schoolmarm did strive, (and how gaily did err) To get the right twist of the tongue on "Monsieur."

And think of the night they had maidens to tea. And with cranberry vines decked the table so tea. And they found out the schoolmarm was really a poet.

"Great cracker," a schoolmarm, (you never would know it), And those wonderful hens that arrived there one day.

"Pesty things," how they cackled and "just would lay!"

Almost "tickled to death" was Aunt Mary, Oh my. And as "happy as barefooted gesses," pretty night. One (?) they had some ice cream, yum, yum, yum. "wanna't it now!"

The schoolmarm, she froze it, the spintster choppy. And the maiden from Concord she daintily minced (?) (And cried when the freezer was empty and rinsed).

Those were halcyon days, but they ended, Oh say. "Twas a pesky mean trick" to tear her away From the hills and the farmhouse, the spintster and hens. The cats and the children, the paper and pens. The couch nearest the fire—oh, the stable I mean. And from Miss Beniah Seacrow, the fairest one seen, From the youthful gallant bringing berries so sour, From the low-lying couch and the late rising hour, From cornflakes and cream, from the lettuce and those rare "creature comforts" to which her heart leans From the rides and the walks and the pine trees' sweet balm, And last, but not least, from the worthy schoolmarm.

Yet, she had to go home, but she's coming again. So here's to next summer in North Norway, Maine.

New Tags for Taxidermists.

The Commissioners have adopted a new style of tag to be used for tagging specimens which are being sent to licensed Taxidermists for mounting.

Formerly the tags were in duplicate—the original to be attached to the specimen and the duplicate to be forwarded to the Commissioners at Augusta.

The new tag does not provide for a duplicate to be sent to Commissioners.

The tags will be of the same size and color as those formerly used, and the shipper will be relieved of the necessity of making out two tags when he wishes to ship a deer head or other trophy to his taxidermist for mounting.

Following is a copy of the new tag:

"Forward without delay to—
Licensed Taxidermist—
"This—was killed on the—day of—
—by—of——Shipper—of—
—J. W. Brackett, Chairman, Blaine S. Viles, Edgar E. Ring, Com. of
I. F. & Game."

Taxidermists who have the old style of tags on hand may use them as long as their supply lasts.

U. S. Population.

Census returns will show a population of about 90,000,000, exclusive of the Philippines.

If the Philippines are included we will undoubtedly count more than 100,000,000, but without them we will fall at least 9,000,000 short of that figure.

The surprising feature of this 13th census is the rapid growth of cities more than 100,000 population. The average rate of increase in such cities has been 20 per cent.

Something for Nothing.

A man walked into a store and bought some molasses, but before he started for home he decided that he didn't need the molasses, and asked the storekeeper if he could exchange the molasses for the same value in sugar and started out, when the following conversation took place.

Storekeeper: "Ain't you going to pay for that sugar?"

Customer: "No, I swapped molasses for the sugar."

Storekeeper: "Well ain't you going to pay for the molasses?"

Customer: "Of course not, I didn't have the molasses."

Storekeeper: "Oh, yes, that's so."

Makes Scrubbing Easier!

Put a little carbolic in the water used in cleaning, and you will be astonished to see how much cleaner you can make things. The carbolic dissolves the greasy kind of dirt which water and soap don't touch. It is no trouble to use the carbolic. Simply pour a spoonful into the pail and go to work in the ordinary way.

A lady well along in years was heard to say: "It is plainly true that our girls more and more shun housework and many of the new homes in these days do not promise uninterrupted happiness from this cause. The girls are urged to try their hands at everything, but the work of the house—the most needed and healthiest pursuit of all." Is this true? It is worthy of some thought.

One Big Fool.

But He Doesn't Live in Norway Nor Read The Advertiser.

A man in Connecticut gave a doctor, a specialist in catarrh, $50 to cure him of this common yet most obnoxious disease.

The specialist gave him a bottle of medicine and told him when and how to use it.

The fool took the medicine home, took one dose, put it on a shelf and made no further effort to follow instructions.

Three months later with the medicine still on the shelf he told a friend that the specialist was a fake; that he had paid him $50 and still had catarrh as bad as ever.

This story is told for a purpose. HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) won't cure catarrh if you don't breathe it; it will cure catarrh if you breathe it regularly.

Furthermore, you don't need to give a catarrh specialist $50 to cure you of catarrh, for the specialist is yet to be born who can write a better prescription than HYOMEI.

Frank Kimball, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store and druggists everywhere guarantee HYOMEI to cure catarrh or money back. A complete outfit which consists of a bottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber inhaler and simple instructions for use costs only $1.00. Separate bottles of HYOMEI if afterwards needed cost but 50 cents. If you already own a HYOMEI inhaler you can get a bottle of HYOMEI at the Noyes Drug Store for 50 cents. No stomach dosing—just breathe it. 36c38

To Open up Game Regions.

That great forest land and game region in the northwestern part of Maine will soon echo with the tooting of whistles from locomotives, hunters will be able to step from trains right in the heart of the greatest hunting region in the State, saw mills will be in operation and a large amount of lumber now going to waste will be brought out of the dense forests, for at last it seems certain that the proposed Allagash railroad of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad will be built.

The proposed extension branches off the main line at the northern end of the Sebasticus Lakes and runs to the eastward to Jo Mary Lakes, skirting along within a short distance of the shores of Pemadumcook Lake, then strikes Nakamakanti Stream. The proposed line follows the stream for some distance up to the shores of Nakamakanti lake and across country to Rainbow lake and thence to Chesuncook Dam.

Here the proposed line passes through some of the best game country in Maine. At the present time sportsmen going to Rainbow or Nakamakanti, leave the train at Norcross, sail 14 miles across the lake and "carry" and paddle to Rainbow across the Debasconag or "carry" or walk up the Nakamakanti road six miles to Nakamakanti lake. From Chesuncook to Allagash is also a sportsman's paradise and up the Allagash to the main line on the Canadian border is a wonderland.

WEST PARIS.*Two Deaths.

Mrs. Rachel Andrews Dunham died at her late home at 6 o'clock, Tuesday forenoon. Mrs. Dunham received an epileptic shock early in April from which she recovered partially and was able to be about, and visited her near neighbors but for a week or two past has been failing. She was in her 81st year and has been remarkably healthy until this sickness overtook her.

She was the wife of Samuel W. Dunham and the mother of ten children, five of whom are now living: Hiram W. of North Paris, who, with his wife, have cleared their home over there and came here early in the spring to care for his parents; George and Lyndon, who are in the boot and shoe business in Brattleboro, Vt.; Fannie, wife of Harry Hamilton of Greenfield, Mass., and Horatio R. of Waterville.

She also has one sister, Mrs. Samuel K. Estes, who lives here and two sisters in California.

The funeral services take place Thursday at 2 o'clock at the house, conducted by Rev. Isabella S. Macduff.

Mr. Dunham, who is in his 83rd year, has also been poorly from the effects of an attack of the grip in the spring, together with the illness of his wife and the loss of his son; Charles, has been hard for him, and much sympathy is expressed in his bereavement. Interment will be in the North Paris cemetery.

Oscar Kimball died of pneumonia, at his home on Maple street, early Tuesday morning, Aug. 30. This is a great blow to his family of a wife and six young children who could ill afford to lose their dearest friend and provider.

Mr. Kimball was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimball, late of North Paris. His mother, a brother, Frank, and sister, Mrs. Lila Jackson, survive him.

He was an industrious and capable worker, and of late has been employed as engineer in L. M. Mann &amp; Sons' factory.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Seth Benson, attended by the F. &amp; A. M., Granite lodge, of which he was a member. Interment in West Paris cemetery.
